Bylaw Controlling Dogs in Village To Be Strictly Enforced Says Council

Consider Extension to Sewerage — Don Tucker Is Appointed As Dog Catcher

The dogs have had it! The perennial question of dogs running at large within the limits of the Village is again to the fore. In response to numerous complaints of the depredations of these roving canines, Village Council took definite steps at Monday night's regular meeting to enforce By-law No. 574. (See advt. on another page). Donald Tucker was appointed dog catcher and given authority to penalize owners allowing their pets to roam. In addition to the penalty of two dollars the owner will be assessed fifty cents per day while the stray is impounded.

Dog owners failing to produce a 1961 tag for his or her pet prior to May 1st next, will also be required to pay an additional fifty cents, which goes to the dog catcher.

Reeve Carl Bateman presided and was supported by Councillors R. Philp, J. Chambers, B. Jones and R. Anderson.

Police Report

Police Chief D. Ketcheson tabled his report, covering his investigations concerning the recent break-ins in the Village which resulted in several convictions. He also requested some stationery supplies and received permission to purchase the same.

Sewer Extension

H. E. Cooke, contractor, presented an estimate on the cost of an extension to the sewer line from Henry St. west on Elizabeth St. to service the properties of A. Christie and J. Klompmaker and any residences which may be erected in future on the south side of the same street. He also submitted estimates on providing sewerage service for the two properties owned by Guy Bradshaw on James St. Reeve Bateman pointed out that the Ontario Water Resources Commission would seek the necessary approval from the Ontario Municipal Board for the expenditure of the amount required, the same to be applied on the original contract.

R. K. West, chairman of the local relief committee, gave his report on relief matters which won the commendation of Council.

Council decided to join the Ontario Municipal Association and the Hastings and Prince Edward Mutual Aid Association. The membership fee in each case is $10.00. The matters of joining the Lake Ontario Development Association and making a grant to the Hastings Co. Farmstead Improvement Competition in connection with the International Plowing Match to be held in the Belleville area, were left in abeyance.

Break-down of Sewerage Costs

A break-down of the costs of the sewerage system, was tabled from the Ontario Water Resources Commission, showing an estimated increase of the total cost of the project as $35,000 and an increase of $5594 in the yearly payments. A jump in the interest rate from 4¾ to 5¾ percent and an increase in the cost of operation were shown as the main contributing factors to the increase.

A lengthy discussion followed as to ways and means of meeting the increased costs and on motion of Councillors Jones and Anderson the Clerk was instructed to write the Ontario Water Resources Commission requesting permission to defer payment of the 1961 debt retirement amounting to $5,127, and limit the reserve for contingency payment to $1000 instead of $1676 for the current year.

A request from Maurice Bell for the use of the theatre for a variety concert on May 3rd was granted.

On motion of Councillors Jones and Chambers a letter of thanks and appreciation will be forwarded L. Langlois, County Road Engineer, for his co-operation in maintaining Mill St. in good condition during the winter months.

The Clerk was also requested to write Mather Associates regarding the Henry St. bridge, urging the early completion of this project.

The tax collector's time was extended until May 1st and all delinquents will be notified by registered mail.

The matter of the purchase of a new lawn mower for the cemetery was left in the hands of the Cemetery Committee.

Councillor Philp gave notice that he would introduce a bylaw to constitute a community centre at the next meeting of Council.

THE BIBLE TODAY

The care that is taken to make sure that any new translation of the Bible is true to the original is illustrated by the fact that there may be five or six different groups of people who check the translation before it becomes acceptable for use.

The new English Translation of the New Testament to be released to the public on March 14th was checked and tested by the translation panel of experts in Hebrew, then by the literary advisors, then again by the whole panel, after examination by the joint committee representing the Churches. The Church bodies themselves offered criticisms and suggestions.

The Joint Committee appointed a revising committee of three to go through the whole translation again in the light of all the criticisms and suggestions which had been made. When their task was finished the translation of the New Testament as a whole was laid before the Joint Committee on 23rd March, 1960, when it was formally approved and accepted. Thirteen years of work on the New Testament was at an end. The work on the Old Testament and the apocrypha continues.

CONSERVATION NEWS

FOREST PROTECTION

The official opening of the forest fire season was on April 1st, and the following regulations are being given special emphasis:

Work Permits

All previous permits expired March 31st and new authority will be granted on application to the District Forester at Tweed.

Except where land is being cleared for agricultural purposes, a work permit is required before carrying on any logging, mining or industrial operations, right-of-way clearing, road, dam or bridge construction, operating a sawmill or any other woods operations liable to cause an accumulation of slash or debris within the forest fire district.

Fire Permits

No person is permitted to set out fire within the fire district from April 1st to October 31st, except for cooking or obtaining warmth, without first obtaining a fire permit.

Permits may be obtained at Forest Ranger Headquarters or from authorized Fire Wardens in Townships under agreement. As a fire prevention measure, it is unlikely that burning will be authorized during the high fire danger periods.

Camp Fires and Smoking Materials

No person may drop or dispose of any burning smoking materials in the fire district without first making certain they are extinguished. Camp fires must be completely extinguished and made safe before leaving.

In Memoriam

STILES — In loving mmory of a dear wife and mother, Marion Evelyn Stiles, who passed away April 10th, 1960.

She is gone but not forgotten
And as dawns another year
In our lonely hours of thinking
Thoughts of her are always near.
Days of sadness will come o'er us
Some may think the wound is healed
But they little know the sorrow
That lies in the heart concealed

—Sadly missed by Harold, Ken and Bob.

STILES — In ever loving memory of a dear sister and daughter, Marion, who passed away one year ago, April 10th, 1960.

The dearest sister and sweetest daughter,
One of the best whom God could lend;
She was loving, gentle, thoughtful and true,
Always willing a kind act to do.
It is not tears at the moment shed,
That tell how beloved is the soul that has fled;
But tears through many a long night wept,
And loving remembrance fondly kept.

—Sadly missed by mother, father, sister and brothers. 7-1p

WHITEHEAD — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Joseph S. Whitehead, who passed away April 4th, 1960.

Eight tables of progressive euchre were played at Sentinel Hall Thursday evening. High lady was Mrs. F. Thompson; high gent, Roy Fry; consolation prizes, Mr. and Mrs. Bogart Linn; lone hand, Edmund Hay. The proceeds amounted to sixteen dollars and was donated to the Hospital Auxiliary.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Locke who celebrated their 45th wedding anniversary on Wednesday. May you be privileged to spend many more years together.

Our deepest sympathy is extended to the family of the late Robert Irwin who passed away in Campbellford Hospital on Monday. Not only do we mourn the loss of a dear husband, father and grandfather, but also "Uncle Bob" as he was known to many in the community. 1 Thessalonians 5: 15 "Ever follow that which is good, both among yourselves and to all me." Paul wrote this to the Thessalonians. Mr. Robert Irwin accepted that challenge.

Sympathetic thoughts also to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Osborne who received word last week of the death of Mr. Osborne's brother in England.

Bride Elect Honoured

On Saturday evening last Mrs. Ross Ray and Mrs. Cecil Carter were co-hostesses for a delightfully arranged shower in honour of Miss Margaret Rose Ray, bride-elect.

The home was artistically decorated with balloons and streamers and was attended by approximately 25 friends, relatives and neighbours. The evening was spent in games and contests. A bride's book was prepared and presented to the bride.

Mrs. Cecil Carter read an address and Margaret Rose was presented with several gifts for the kitchen, for which she very suitably replied, expressing her most sincere thanks for the many useful gifts.

The hostesses served dainty refreshments and a social hour was enjoyed.

OUR UNIQUE MAPLE PRODUCTS

Early settlers on Canadian soil literally cut their first sweet tooth in the sugar bush. Every spring since that time, the stands of sugar maples, Soft Red and Soft White Maples, the Silver Maples and the Black Maples that grow in our south eastern areas, have been tapped. The gathered Maple sap is made into maple syrup, sugar, butter and taffy.

Maple products cost more than other syrups and sugars for various reasons. One is the fact that it takes all the sap from a healthy tree (30 to 40 gallons) to make one gallon of maple syrup. Other reasons are the cost and work involved in the "sugaring" off process, the short season of production and the annual output which depends so much on the weather.

Before you buy maple products check the label and make sure it uses the word "maple." Federal government legislation forbids the word "maple" on the label of any product that is not pure maple. The only exception is the use of the words "artificially maple flavoured" on certain syrups and sugar spreads. Don't be misled by these artificially maple flavoured syrups on the same shelf and in similar containers as the pure syrup, says the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. Carefully check the label on the bottle, or can, and make sure it is marked "Maple Syrup."

It is possible in maple producing areas to buy maple products from roadside stands or from door to door salesmen. In these cases, consumers should taste the product and carefully examine the label before buying. Make sure the label reads "Maple Syrup" or "Maple Sugar" and that it carries the name and address of the packer.

If you would like to know more about Canada's Maple products — how they are made and how to use them — write to Information Division, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, for a free copy of the new "Maple" booklet No. 1096. Besides facts on buying, storing and using, this booklet contains some 25 maple recipes. Here is an example of the delicious dessert recipes to be found in the Maple booklet.

Maple Sponge

1¼ cups milk
1 tablespoon gelatine
¼ cup cold water
2 egg yolks, beaten
⅛ teaspoon salt
2-3 cup maple syrup
½ teaspoon vanilla
2 egg whites
2 tablespoons maple syrup
2 tablespoons chopped nuts

Heat milk in top of double boiler. Meanwhile, soak gelatine in cold water for 5 minutes. Stir a little of the hot milk into the beaten egg yolks, then combine with the remaining hot milk in double boiler. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens slightly, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat and add soaked gelatine and salt, stirring until dissolved. Gradually stir in the 2-3 cup maple syrup. Cook mixture until partially set — about 1 hour. Meanwhile, beat egg whites until fairly stiff, then beat in the 2 tablespoons maple syrup and the vanilla. Fold egg whites and nuts into the partially set gelatine mixture. Turn into a mould and chill until set — about 3 hours. Six servings.

HEAD, HEART, HANDS AND HEALTH

Brian Sayles, of Paris, Ontario, raised nine lambs from a breeding flock of five ewes. Operating expenses, $69; market receipts, $188. Profit for 1960, $120. Brian is 14 years old, an active 4-H club member. His parents are both former club members and are prominent leaders in their community. Their herd of Jersey cattle has won exhibition championships and ROP awards time and again.

Reading the weekly papers, I have been impressed with the wonderful work of the 4-H clubs for a long, long time. To my shame, however, I wasn't certain of what the H's stood for. My brother, who is a weekly newspaper editor and very sold on 4-H work, suggested that I find out at once and write it up in my column so that others who never knew or have forgotten will be informed.

The H's come from the 4-H pledge which reads:

"I pledge my Head to clear thinking
My Heart to greater loyalty,
My Hands to larger service,
My Health to better living,
For my Club, my community, my county."

To my mind that would be a pledge worth taking by every Canadian. I know from personal knowledge that boys and girls who take that pledge really mean it and pay a good deal more than lip service to it. Loyalty and service are never in surplus supply in this world, so in dedicating themselves in this manner, thousands of young Canadians are insuring a better future for this country.

Men and women who had the advantage of 4-H membership in their youth may now be found in many important positions of leadership. In future years, more and more 4-H members, pledged to clear thinking, service, loyalty and so forth, will become leaders. That's a reassuring thought for anyone inclined to be pessimistic about our country's future.

FOR WOMEN ONLY

(By Ann Bowman)

The only movie house in the little Ontario town was showing a film on Sunday. This was the first time in history that such a thing had happened and the women of the town were all talking about it. It was to be a film for women only and there was to be a doctor present to answer the questions that were bound to arise.

When Sunday afternoon arrived, two hundred and fifty women turned out to see the film, most of them young mothers who left their husbands at home to baby sit.

Many of the women were fearful of what they might see, others thought it was merely a good opportunity to get out of the house for a while, still others were genuinely concerned about the film in relation to what it might tell them about themselves.

When the film was over, all of the women — almost without exception — were both surprised and glad they had attended. Many of them had not known that they could and should examine their own breasts for any signs of abnormality. That sort of thing, they had been certain, must be done by the doctor.

After the film, Breast Self Examination, many women went home to immediately put into practice the instructions they had received through the film and through the answers given by the local doctor to the many questions that had been asked.

A few days later, one of the doctors in the town, knowing of the work of the Canadian Cancer Society in showing the film, reported back to the local Cancer group.

"Five women came to my office yesterday," he told the Cancer Society volunteer, "two of them had small lumps in their breasts, which will be looked after immediately. The other three thought they had found something, were examined by me, and went home content that nothing was wrong."

The first two women had early cancer of the breast. But because they went to their doctor immediately after examining themselves, and were diagnosed in the very early stages, they have every chance of full recovery. A few months later, and it might well have been too late.

This is only one authentic picture of a story that can be told in every Ontario community, large or small, whether this particular film has been shown or not. It is one more story of part of the work in cancer education that is being conducted year in year out by the Ontario Division of the Canadian Cancer Society.

Besides its work in education, and its vast work of welfare service throughout the province, the Canadian Cancer Society requires over one and a half million dollars this year to support the fundamental cancer research which must be carried on relentlessly, and on an enormous scale, if the cause and cure of cancer is ever to be discovered.

BIRD MEMORIES

(Editorial Windsor Daily Star, March 23rd, 1961)

Memory is a most prized possession of man. It is one, however, which he shares with the animals of the fields and the birds of the air. Often their memories are more acute and accurate than those of men and, indeed, are passed down from generation to generation.

An example of this is provided by the wild geese which visit the Jack Miner Sanctuary each Spring and Autumn. These not only know when to come but how to find this small dot on the map of their long flights.

Jack Miner has been dead since 1944. But, in their special sense, these birds still remember him. Those which experienced his tender care may all now be dead. But they passed along to their offspring their good news of him and his good works on their behalf. The current generation of geese and ducks still know Jack Miner, through his endeavours on their behalf now carried on by his sons.

As long as the wild geese fly they will remember Jack Miner and his sanctuary. They never have forgotten him. Their semi-annual pilgrimages to his shrine, erected to their benefit, cause the thousands of humans who visit it also to remember him. These memories constitute his everlasting memorial.

ACTION DEFERRED

(The Trentonian)

For reasons which must have seemed good to them, the majority of the municipal delegates at Warkworth on Wednesday turned down the proposal to form a Lower Trent Valley Conservation Authority at the present time. Trenton's delegates, along with three others, took the long view, and supported the idea.

Those who opposed the plan evidently looked at cost, and sould see no immediate advantage. We think this is an error. However, there was this proviso, that they felt it ought not to be done at the present time.

From this meeting another committee was formed to carry on the plan for future action. It certainly should be pressed, for this is the question of spending a small amount of money now to avoid having to spend a great deal later, when our short-sightedness could well lose us all the advantages we now have.

In this connection, the Legion deserves thanks for the effort put into the original committee. In particular William Menzies devoted time and energy to this for many months. We hope he does not feel the effort was wasted.

If there was any lack, it was in an apathetic public, which seems habitually to wait until the horse is out of the stable before insisting on having the door locked. Enthusiastic public support should be given to the effort, with letters and public meetings, so that elected representatives understand that the people want them to take some action to preserve our good water and trees.

Any who oppose the idea, or who lack enthusiasm for conservation, should take a drive to the Toronto area, and see the Don, Humber and Credit rivers. They could then reflect whether they want the Trent to get into the same condition for the sake of spending a few dollars to prevent it.

GOLDEN APPROACH TO BUTTER

(Vancouver Sun)

Now here's the approach we like to see to the problem of Canada's butter surplus.

A campaign that tries to put butter talk on every tongue, hoping it will get more butter there, too.

A campaign that reaches from Isaiah 7: 15: "Butter and honey shall he eat that he may know how to refuse the evil and choose the good," to Clause 4, Article 10, in the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners union contract, covering 20,000 bushworkers: "There shall be no substitute for butter supplied to employees."

A campaign that recalls butter as the food item we missed most during the war, that butter was known 10,000 years ago in Asia and Northwest Africa, and that a pat of butter dropped into the pot will keep cooking rice from boiling over.

A campaign that feeds recorded butter-boosting jingles to radio stations, and quotes noted physicians who are skeptical of current research claims that heavy consumption of animal fats can put fatal accumulations of cholesterol into our blood vessels.

The campaign is being waged by the Butter Advisory Committee of Canada. It uses only persuasion intended to be as golden and as smooth as its product. Its aim is honest — to get Canadians eating more butter (including some in the post-war generations who've never tasted it) to shore up the troubled dairy industry.

Nowhere does the campaign attack or argue for any restriction on cheaper margarine; nowhere does it suggest that butter ought to have greater government subsidies.

It offers butter on its merits, exactly the spirit The Sun advocated recently in opposing the dairy industry's demand for an additional 10 cents a pound subsidy for butter.

We hope the committee sells a lot more butter. It deserves to sell it.

Cooking Comments

Children should be encouraged to form good food habits, since these will persist and become more fixed as the years pass. Adults who have developed good food habits, including a taste for a wide range of foods and a willingness to try new dishes, will find life more healthful and interesting, advises the Food and Nutrition Department, Macdonald Institute, Guelph.

Infants, children, growing teenagers and expectant mothers need 400 International Units of Vitamin D per day from some concentrates such as fish liver oil or from specially treated food such as irradiated milk. Although some foods provide Vitamin D and some Vitamin D may be formed in the skin when it is exposed to direct sunlight, the average growing Canadian requires an additional source of Vitamin D.

When making pastry, avoid overmixing. Add water carefully, distributing it evenly among the fat-flour particles. The Food and Nutrition Department, Macdonald Institute, Guelph, suggests that portions of dough which cling together be pushed to one side of the bowl before more water is added, in order to avoid the incorporation of excess water which may toughen the product.

SHEEP INDUSTRY REVIVES

The ancient art of the shepherd, for many years a declining phase of the livestock industry in Ontario, has recently taken a new lease of life. In Wellington County for example, a 4-H Sheep Club has been organized this year among the farm boys and girls, with a membership of over 30. Other counties are reporting a similar interest on the part of the young people. Last fall, according to W. H. Tisdale of the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers, 3000 high quality Western range ewes were moved into Ontario for the establishment of new commercial flocks.

WHEAT SALE

Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton recently announced the sale of an additional 100,000 metric tons of wheat to Czechoslovakia at a value of $8.6 million.

The Minister told the House of Commons that this is over and above a wheat sale concluded last month. He said it brings to about 300,00 metric tons — or 11 million bushels — the amount sold this year to Czechoslovaka.

Total value of the wheat sales is $25.8 million.

The terms for the latest sale are the same as those for the earlier one. The wheat will be purchased on a credit basis and, by agreement between the two governments, Export Credits Insurance has been provided to facilitate the sale.

Payment will be: ten percent cash at date of shipment; 30 percent payable one year later; 3 percent payable two years from date of shipment; and the remaining 30 percent three years from date of shipment.

The wheat will be shipped from St. Lawrence ports following the opening of navigation.

WEED CONTROL

It takes a combination of herbicides DNBP and CDAA to control annual broadleaf weeds and grasses in soybeans, according to Dr. J. R. Hay, of the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa.

The Canada Department of Agriculture researcher says DNBP at three pounds per acre controls the first and CDAA at four pounds per acre controls the second.

Best results in controlling both were obtained in four years of testing at Ottawa from an equal mixture of the chemicals applied at two pounds per acre a day or two before the soybeans emerge. The spray covered a band 10 to 12 inches wide over the rows which should be about a yard apart for most efficient use of the herbicides. Twenty to 30 gallons of spray per acre is needed and the seedbeds should be well prepared.

One or two cultivations during the season are necessary to control the weeds betwen the rows.

USE THESE STALL SIZES

Planning to renovate your stable in the near future?

Research and farmer experience indicate that you'll get less leg and udder injury and overall better herd health if you build long, wide cow stalls.

"Extra length for stalls isn't a big problem unless you have a very narrow bar," says Bob Milne, extension engineer with the Ontario Department of Agriculture. "It's usually best to reduce alley widths to a minimum in order to provide extra comfort for the animals."

He feels extra width for stalls is no problem "except that it means 1 or 2 fewer stalls in the length of the stable." He believes the cows are likely to make up for the loss in number of stalls by producing more milk in more comfortable stalls.

"In the average-size herd this difference in production will likely mean that fewer cows in larger stalls will produce as much or more than cows in smaller stalls."

A cow stall should be long enough so that the cow's udder is well up on the platform when she lies down — not "draped over the edge of the gutter" as is sometimes the case.

Dirty stalls won't be a problem in long stalls if you use a cow trainer. "A trainer will force the cows to step back when using the gutter and keep the stand clean. Long stalls will also reduce the tendency for some cows to always stand in the gutter."

Milne suggests keeping the width of the stalls roughly in proportion to the length, but for Holstein cows "stalls should be 4 feet wide or more." If you use cow trainers keep these stall sizes in mind:

—800 Pound Cow (65 inch girth): 3'6" stalls width; 4'8" length for stanchion stalls; 5'2" length for tie stalls.

—1000 Pound Cows (70½ inch girth): 3'9"; 5'0"; 5'6"

—1200 Pound Cows (75 inch girth): 4'0"; 5'4"; 6'0".

—1400 Pound Cows (79½ inch girth): 4'4"; 5'8"; 6'2".

—1600 Pound Cows (84 inch girth): 4'6" to 4'8"; 6'0"; 6'6".

If you aren't going to use cow trainers, Milne suggests you keep the stalls 4 inches shorter than these sizes.

Alexander Graham Bell, Thomas Edison and Guiseppe Marconi all did part of their electrical pioneering in Canada.

CLOSER CO-OPERATION IN MARKETING SEEN

Closer co-operation between the Province of Quebec and Ontario in the field of marketing of products common to both provinces is forseen by Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, following his recent meeting with Hon. Alcide, Minister of Agriculture for Quhec.

Mr. Goodfellow recently conferred with Mr. Courcy at which time mutual marketing problems were discussed which would bring about closer liason between the marketing organizations of the two provinces.

"During our discussions it was evident that Mr. Courcy and his Department were just as eager and willing as Ontario to attempt to synchronize agricultural marketing policy and methods so as to put producers of both provinces in the strongest possible position," said Mr. Goodfellow.

The Minister said there was complete agreement that there was no advantage to one province accepting lower producer prices for a particular product than might be received in the other. He felt that it was desirable that some plan be devised so that similar producer price structures and conditions of sale would prevail.

"Quebec and Ontario represent two great agricultural provinces which have many mutual interests in the field of marketing and the general welfare of agriculture," said Mr. Goodfellow. "It is our intention to maintain regular contact in order that we may discuss and act upon mutual problems, particularly in the field of marketing."

While in Quebec Mr. Goodfellow and Everett M. Biggs, Assistant Deputy Minister (Marketing) visited the Quebec Salon of Agriculture and extended Ontario's congratulations on the success of the show.

LAMB PRICE SUPPORT

The Agricultural Stabilization Board is prepared to implement the price support programme for "Good" lambs any time they cannot be sold in stockyards at the established support level, Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton said recently.

The Stabilization Board defines "Good" lambs as those that will provide 36 to 51 pound carcasses which will grade Choice or Good.

Mr. Hamilton's assurance came as lamb growers voiced concern over the operation of the support programme for lambs. They are nearing the end of their marketing period with an estimated 8,000 lambs remaining on feed out of approximately 70,000 which entered feedlots last fall.

Level at which lambs are supported ranges from $19.35 per hundredweight at Toronto and Montreal to $16.10 per hundredweight in Alberta.

Reason for the difference in price is that the lamb-feeding areas of Western Canada are in a surplus position in respect to local consumption and the bulk of the lambs must be moved — either live or dressed — to the large consuming areas of Vancouver or Eastern Canada.

Lambs meeting the Stabilization Board's specifications are now selling on Toronto public stockyards at $20.50 per hundredweight, or $1.15 per hundredweight above the support level. There have been sales of lambs in Calgary stockyards at $15 to $15.50 per hundredweight, but they were mixed lots of from one-third to one-half out weights and off grades.

Although Canada does not produce enough lambs to meet annual requirements, it is in the interest of producers to have this meet available year-round rather than on a seasonal basis. Only in this way can increasing demand be stimulated.

At the same time, it is important that lamb importations, chiefly from Australia and New Zealand, do not interfere with the orderly marketing of the Canadian product. With this in mind, negotiations are continuing with the exporting countries to avoid marketing conflicts between domestic and imported lamb.

Since release of the product to the retail trade from storage is a consideration, as well as the time of arrival at seaboard, the co-operation of the trade is being sought.

Influence of imported lamb on Canadian prices is difficult to assess, but a useful criterion is the relationship of Canadian and United States prices. In recent weeks, the price at Toronto has been $3 to $4 higher than at Chicago.

Canada marketed 560,000 lambs last year, most of them between October and March. Canadian imports totalled the equivalent of 500,000 lambs.

Driving along a country road, the woman noticed several linemen climbing hydro poles.

"Silly fools!" she exclaimed to her companion. "They must think I've never driven before."

Municipal Delegates Reject Formation Conservation Auth.

At a meeting in Warkworth Town Hall on Wednesday afternoon of last week the municipalities concerned rejected the formation of the Lower Trent Valley Conservation Authority at this time. Sixteen of the 18 municipalities sent accredited delegates to the meeting and many other interested persons attended throughout the area.

The vote was 12 to 5 against forming the authority. Those voting in favour were Councillors Lloyd Worrall and D. R. Fraser of Trenton, Councillor Ray Moran of Frankford, Reeve Carleton Rowe of Seymour and Murray Lock of Campbellford.

Those voting against were Reeve Douglas McMaster of Murray, Reeve Robert Carlaw of Brighton, Reeve Gerald Philp of Cramahe, Councillor B. Morton of Rawdon, A. Warkman of Percy, Horace Casey of Thurlow, Charlton Griggs of Alnwick, W. J. C. Wright of Huntingdon, Councillor Nels Masterson of Hungerford, Deputy-Reeve Gerald Irvine of Sidney, Councillor Hilton Harris of Hamilton and Councillor Robt. Philp of Stirling.

The delegates asked many questions before the vote was taken and afterwards expressed their own support for such work as the authority would do in the area, but felt that more effort should be spent in acquainting the public with the benefits that could be gained from a Conservation Authority.

As previously announced by President Ken Craddock of Trenton Branch 110 of the Royal Canadian Legion, the Legion Conservation Committee undertook the promotion of this authority as a public service project for 1960, and feel that they have done all that is in their power to do on this project, so the committee will be discontinued.

After the close of the formal meeting it was agreed by those interested persons present that a new committee should be formed to continue working towards the formation of an authority, and John Guertin of the teaching staff of Trenton High School agreed to serve as chairman of this new committee.

Campaign For Cancer Society Now In Progress In Stirling and District

The canvassers for the Stirling Branch of the Canadian Cancer Society have begun their work in the area and have set an objective of $2,500 for the district. It is expected that the canvas will be completed within a couple of weeks. Citizens are urged to give generously to this appeal and do their share in the fight against this dread disease.

Cancer Education Makes Progress

Indications that cancer education is beginning to bear fruit are to be seen in a recent study of cancer mortality statistics between the years 1941 and 1958, according to the Canadian Cancer Society.

The analysis by Dr. A. J. Phillips, statistician for the National Cancer Institute of Canada which is affiliated with the Society, shows that death rates in women from all cancers have significantly decreased over the 18-year period. The figures for male cancer deaths, were not quite so encouraging since a statistically significant increase took place, but it was found that most of the increases had been caused by a substantial upswing in the lung cancer rate.

He found that the age-adjusted mortality rates per 100,000 of Canada's population in eight principal body sites had done the following over the period studied: Lip and mouth, decreased in males; intestines, no change for males; decreased for females; stomach, decreased in both males and females; rectum, no change for either sex; lung, increased for males (from 9.1 to 26.3 per 100,000) and no significant change for females; urinary organs, increased in males, no change for females; breast, no significant change; cervix, a borderline increase; uterus, a significant decrease; prostate, increased; leukemia, increased for both sexes.

The Canadian Cancer Society now spends about 13 percent of its budget on public education, the keystone of which is this simple philosophy: the earlier treatment for cancer begins, the better the chances of a cure.

Miss Louise Harding Recipient Gold Cord

The First Stirling Girl Guide Company held an enjoyable evening on March 27th to honour Louise Harding who had recently passed all of the required tests for her Gold Cord. Parents and all Guiding personnel were in attendance and ten Guides who were trying for their Hostess badges, were in charge of the programme and lunch.

The evening opened with the presentation of the colours, followed by the singing of the Queen.

Linda Wilson then took over the meeting. Suitable readings pertaining to the Gold Cord Award were well given and musical numbers rendered.

Mrs. Kent, former District Commissioner of the Girl Guides, presented Louise with her Gold Cord. She assured Louise that the award was not easily won and once one had received it, it should be worn well and that Louise should remember that once she wore the cord the eyes of the Guiding World would be upon her and it should be worn with the greatest personal pride.

Mrs. Robert Luery, District Commissioner, spoke briefly, congratulating Louise upon the award and stressed the calibre of a Guide who received the award and assured Louise that she was worthy of the Gold Cord. Edith de Jong presented Louise with a Girl Guide ring on behalf of the Company.

Miss Harding spoke briefly, thanking all who had helped her in any way and stated she would wear the Cord with great pride.

Then followed more readings, each relating to the honour bestowed upon Louise. Pictures were taken with all of the principals of the evening smiling for the photographer, after which a most delicious lunch was served by the would-be hostesses in a most capable manner.

Presented With Certificate of Honours

Louise was further honoured for her achievement on April 6th when she, accompanied by her family and Helen Faulkner, journeyed to Toronto, where a most impressive ceremony was held in Convocation Hall in honour of 198 Gold Cord Guides from Ontario.

Mrs. K. B. Cylsdale, Provincial Commissioner, welcomed all, after which Miss H. Osler, Chief Commissioner for Canada, presented the Guides with their certificates of honour. A choir consisting of Guides from Stoney Creek, Toronto and Burlington, entertained with a number of Guide and folk songs.

The address of the evening was given by Mrs. Wm. Hyde, Immediate Past Deputy Chief Commissioner. She spoke directly to the Gold Cord Guides on "What will you do with your life." Taps and O Canada brought another memorable evening to a close.

Hosts To Visiting Societies at Dessert Luncheon—Mrs. Atton, of Tweed, Speaker

St. Paul's Woman's Missionary Society were hosts to several visiting auxiliaries for the Easter Thankoffering meeting on Tuesday, April 11th which took the form of a dessert luncheon. The tables were tastefully decorated with spring flowers.

After welcoming the visitors, Mrs. Geo. Carlisle gave a thoughtful introduction to the programme based on John 20, verse 19 "The doors being shut Jesus came and stood in the midst and said unto them; Peace be unto you."

The Easter Thankoffering Service, prepared by Dr. Winnifred Thomas, was followed with Mrs. Volney Richardson leading.

The speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. Atton, of Tweed, who showed slides of the Holy Land. Mrs. Atton was introduced by Mrs. Carlisle.

Among the many excellent slides were: The Damascus Gate, St. Stephen's Gate, the Bible Society Depot in Jerusalem, the lillies of the field spoken of in Matthew 6: 28, shepherds with their flocks, Rivers Nile and Jordan, Sea of Galilee, Pool of Bethesda, Solomon's pools from which the water is carried fifteen miles to supply Jerusalem, women with their water jars numbering as many as one hundred, a refugee camp where there is no shade and temperatures rise to 120 degrees.

Mrs. Atton reminded her listeners that we are living in grave times. The world is divided into two camps — Christianity and Communism.

Mrs. Sid MacDonald favoured with a solo, "Were You There When They Crucified My Lord?" This was especially effective, sung while the picture of Jesus, wearing the crown of thorns, was on the screen.

Mrs. Richardson thanked all who had helped with the meeting. Mrs. H. C. Martin thanked Mrs. Atton and presented her with a gift.

Mrs. Wm. Morton introduced Mrs. Burton Morton the guest speaker, who spoke on the life of Pauline Johnson. On March the 10th, the anniversary of Pauline Johnson's birth, a commemorative postage stamp was issued in her honour. It is the first stamp issued to honour a Canadian Indian, or Canadian woman or Canadian writer. Mrs. B. Morton told by the use of slides the life history of E. Pauline Johnson. Morton -- Ray Wedding

A pretty wedding was solemnized in Salem United Church, Minto, on Saturday, April 1st, at 1.00 p.m., when the Rev. H. Stobbart, Ivanhoe, assisted by the Rev. J. McLeod, of Marmora, united in marriage Margaret Rose Ray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Ray, of R.R. 1, Harold, to William Elmer Morton, son of William Morton, of Campbellford, and the late Mrs. Morton. Easter lilies adorned the chancel rail.

During the ceremony the wedding music was played by the church organist, Mrs. Sylvanus Hagerman.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Arnold Ray, was lovely in a ballerina-length gown of Chantilly lace in three tiers, over satin, designed with a princess fitted bodice and her veil was in matching material enhanced with a finely scalloped headdress, set with baby seed pearls. She carried a white Bible crested with red roses.

The maid of honor, Miss Lois Ray, of Belleville, niece of the bride, was dressed in blue organza over taffeta in ballerina-length and carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Mr. Lorne Ray, of R.R. 1 Harold, brother of the bride, attended the bridegroom, and the ushers were Mr. Allan Fargey, of Stirling, and Mr. Edward Stevens, of Campbellford, brothers-in-law of the bridegroom.

The reception was held in the church dining hall which was decorated with pink and white streamers and Easter lilies. The bride's table was appointed in damask, centred with a three-tiered wedding cake and flanked with silver candelabra with pink and white streamers and the bridal bouquets.

The bride's mother, who received, chose a dress of navy blue lace with contrasting accessories. Her corsage was of pink carnations.

For the honeymoon to Niagara Falls, Detroit and points west, the bride chose a lilac colored embossed suit with white accessories and corsage of yellow baby 'mums.

Guests were present from Madoc, Arden, Oshawa, Campbellford, Stirling, Ivanhoe and Rochester, N.Y.

Prior to her marriage the bride was the recipient of numerous useful gifts at a miscellaneous shower held by Mrs. Ed Colden and Mrs. Roy Finch and a kitchen shower by Mrs. Ross Ray and Mrs. Carl Ray.

The bride and groom will reside at Springbrook.

Cooking Comments

Cool cakes before cutting or removing them from the pan, advises the Food and Nutrition Department, Macdonald Institute, Guelph. Cooling helps to set the delicate cell walls of hot cake.

To cool most butter cakes, remove the baked cake from the oven and set on a cake rack for fifteen minutes. For proper cooling, air should circulate all around the cake.

COOKING EGGS IN SHELL

To serve your husband an egg for breakfast that is as tough as Indian rubber and has a black circled eye, is enough to send him back to his mother! So all brides, prospective brides, and yes, the long-timers too, would do well to take note of these pointers on cooking eggs in the shell. They are the results of many cooking tests carried out on GradeA eggs by the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, and worth the few minutes it takes to cook an egg so that it's just right.

To Prevent Cracking — Remove eggs from refrigerator one-half hour before cooking, or allow them to stand in warm water for a few minutes.

Amount of Water for Cooking — Use enough water to completely cover eggs to a depth of at least ½ inch — for 2 eggs in a small saucepan, use about 3 cups; for 4 to 6 eggs in a medium saucepan, use about 4 cups; for 12 eggs, one layer deep in a large saucepan, use about 5 cups.

Soft Cooked

Cold Water Method — Place eggs in saucepan, add water, cover and bring rapidly to a boil. Set pan off heat. Let stand 2 to 5 minutes, depending on degree of firmness desired.

Hot Water Method — Bring water to a boil in a covered saucepan. Slip eggs into water one at a time. Cover saucepan, reduce heat and draw pan partially off burner, keeping water just below simmering. Let stand 4 to 8 minutes.

Hard Cooked

Cold Water Method — When cooking 2 to 4 eggs at a time, follow directions for soft cooked eggs, Cold Water Method, but let eggs stand 20 to 25 minutes. Plunge immediately into cold water and chill thoroughly to prevent a dark ring forming on yolks. To remove shells more easily, crack them while chilling.

When cooking more than 4 eggs at a time, reduce heat as soon as water comes to a boil, and draw saucepan partially off burner, keeping water just below simmering. Let stand 20 to 25 minutes.

Hot Water Method — Follow method for soft cooked eggs, Hot Water Method, but let stand 20 to 25 minutes. Chill immediately.

Note: When water is kept "just below simmering," small bubbles form on the bottom of the saucepan and remain there. If these bubbles start rising, the water is actually simmering and the temperature is too high.

OF MANY THINGS

(By Ambrose Hills)

MEAN TESTS?

Political jargon is interesting.

Popular today is the idea of a "needs" test rather than a "means" test. Politicians love to protest against what they refer to as the "meanness" of the means test.

Their protests, however, are insincere. The meanness they object to applies, they seem to suggest, only when the government is giving tax money away. They do not deplore the "meanness" that is involved when the government takes your tax money from you.

Every time you fill out an income tax form you are taking a means test; and it is very mean indeed, because the purpose is to take from you a large portion of your earnings — not to give you something.

If you are a married man and die before your wife, your widow will be taxed on what you leave her. If you leave her a pension, she must pay a tax on her entire life interest in it, because the government will guess how long she is likely to live and will tax her on what she may get for the next ten, fifteen, or even twenty years. It can be a big sum, even though the pension is small. And if she dies in ten years and thus doesn't get all the money, she still has paid the tax on it! Can you think of a situation much meaner than that?

The excuse for this sort of thing is always that the government has to have money to pay for all the wonderful things it does for us. Well, if it does many more wonderful things for us we're going to be in a bad way indeed! Many of us would like to be allowed to do some of those things for ourselves, because we believe we could do them less expensively, or do other things more to our taste.

The reason governments have been able to go on taxing us so severely is simple. Many voters aren't aware that they pay for all these "benefits." They think the rich do most of the paying.

How wrong they are! You and I do the paying. We pay the taxes not only on our incomes but also in the prices of the goods we buy. For example, next time you buy some gas, ask how much of the price is for taxes. Taxes on gasoline have gone up in five provinces recently.

When the majority of voters awake to the fact that they pay for every single thing that governments "give" them, there'll be some new planks in political platforms — planks like Prudence, Thrift, and Tax Reductions!

A furnace goes dead. A car won't start ... We all know such sudden household emergencies—and how we depend on the telephone for help. It's so simple: we just call a number. But imagine all the headaches we'd have if we couldn't!

Taking as her topic, "An Imaginary Trip Through Caledonia Diocese," she gave a vivid word picture of that part of the country and of conditions in which the people live, their activities and industries. The population is scattered, with some being isolated for six months of the year. The Sunday School by Post and Miss Hasell's Van workers are doing splendid work. Donation of $25.00 Made To Hastings County Farmstead Improvement Com.

In spite of rainy weather, there was a marked increase in attendance at Monday night's meeting of the Stirling Horticultural Society, held in the Parish Hall of St. John's Anglican Church.

The members were pleased that their President, Mrs. Floyd Armstrong, was once more able to preside at the meeting after her stay in hospital.

All present repeated the Lord's Prayer and the President gave a meditation on Spring. The Secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting and gave the financial report. Correspondence was dealt with and new business discussed. The Society decided to send a $25.00 donation to the County of Hastings Farmstead Improvement Committee. Stirling Legion To Again Sponsor Mammoth Fireworks Display

House to House Canvas Will Be Made for Funds — Junior Band To Attend

Local and district residents will again have the opportunity of celebrating the Victoria Day holiday in bang-up style. Stirling Legion have announced plans to stage a mammoth fireworks display at the Stirling Fair Grounds on Monday, May 22nd.

It has been pointed out that the average family would have to spend between $3.00 and $5.00 for a suitable family fireworks display. By pooling their finances it has been proven that a community can stage a safer, more spectacular display at less cost. This is borne out by the great success of last year's local fireworks display.

The Legion will stage a house to house canvass for funds on the evening of Tuesday, April 25th. At this time local residents will be asked to contribute to the Legion Fireworks Fund. All donors will be given a ticket which will permit them to park their car on the grounds. Public support was most generous last year and it is hoped that increased support this year will make an even better display possible.

Plans are being completed to have additional entertainment on the grounds prior to the fireworks display. The Stirling-Rawdon District High School Band will be in attendance. The local Scout and Guide Associations will sell refreshments. A more detailed programme will be announced in early May.

It is hoped that rural residents will also join in supporting the Fireworks Fund. A notice advising rural citizens as to how they may make their donation will be posted in every district cheese factory. The Legion hope to make this an annual event for the enjoyment of all local and district residents.

Persons wishing to make a donation prior to the general canvass on April 25th may leave same at either Noble's Drug Store or Patterson's Men's Wear.

While gradually becoming enlightened, too large a portion of the poorly informed public remain uncertain concerning VISION care and medical EYE care.

Factually, these two of the general Health services are quite different fields, both separately essential to human welfare. Indeed that of Optometry is less related to medicine that that of Dentistry.

VEAL

In springtime when one is in a capricious mood — just like the weather — it is nice to have little dinners with lots of spirit rather than the heavier fare of winter days. Fortunately, veal is in season and this is one meat that can be served frequently in any number of ways, no matter how whimsical the mood.

Canadians do not buy veal as often as they do beef or pork. However, consumers should be familiar with the characteristics of good quality veal.

Here are some buy points to help you in your selection:

Look at the texture — Veal is fine textured and rather velvety. More mature veal is firmer than young veal and has more flavour.

Look for the colour — This is usually an indication of maturity. Younger veal has a greyish-pink colour whereas the older, more mature meat shades to pinkish-brown.

Look at the bones — Porous, reddish coloured bones are a sign of a young animal. Less porous and lighter coloured bones indicate the heavier more mature meat.

Look for little fat — Veal has very little fat and what there is of it is white to creamy white, possibly tinged with pink. Most veal cuts require added fat for cooking.

Those of us who like to cook, find veal a wonderful meat to show off our skill in using seasonings and sauces. The recipe for Veal and Ham Rolls, tested at the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, is a case in point. Here, we have a blend of two meats served in a creamy and well seasoned sauce. The basis for a dinner that will do much to help shake off the winter doldrums!

Veal and Ham Rolls

2 pounds veal cutlets
(¼ inch thick)
6 very thin slices cooked ham
4 tablespoons fat
Few grains pepper
2 cans (10-ounces each) cream of Mushroom soup
½ cup milk
¼ teaspoon marjoram
OR ¼ teaspoon savoury

Divide veal into 6 serving-size pieces. Place a slice of ham on each piece of veal. Roll as tightly as possible, fasten with skewer, then tie with string. Brown rolls well on all sides in fat over moderate heat 10 to 15 minutes. Sprinkle with pepper. Blend soup and milk, stir in marjoram or savoury and pour over rolls. Cover closely and cook over low heat for 30 minutes, turn rolls and cook covered 25 to 30 minutes longer or until meat is fork tender.

An alternative method is to cover closely and bake in a moderately slow oven (325 degs. F.) for 30 minutes. Turn rolls and bake uncovered 30 minutes longer or until meat is fork tender. Six servings.

At a recent reception in front of the city hall, a sign had been erected near the speaker's platform for the benefit of press photographers. It read, "Do not photograph the speakers while they are addressing the audience. Shoot them as they approach the platform."

OF MANY THINGS

(By Ambrose Hills)

CHANGING THE WORLD

We all go through a stage when we want to change the world. Like the old tent-maker, we are convinced that we could reshape society somewhat closer to the heart's desire.

This supreme confidence that we could reshape the world is a characteristic of youth. I think it was Mark Twain who said that when he was a boy of 14, his father was so ignorant he could hardly stand to have the old man around; but when he was 21, he was astonished at how much the old man had learned in seven years!

Some men go on all their lives trying to revolutionize the world. Charles F. Kettering used to say that these men would continue to try to revolutionize things as long as they never have to present a working model!

There is an amusing paradox in this situation. The revolutionaries seldom persuade the rest of us to give them the power they want to reshape the world. There are two reasons why we do not give them power. First — they cannot demonstrate a working model; second, what model they do offer seems always to be some form of society that would be unchangeable, fixed, static, blueprinted forever!

But while we resist the allurements of those who want to change the world - we go on changing it ourselves, as individuals. For man is perpetually dissatisfied. He looks for new and better ways of doing his job, of providing a service, of making a profit.

Individuals who really do change the world seldom belong to revolutionary groups. They do not believe our society is in a mess and must be radically changed and set in some new blueprinted form. Their slogan, rather, is that things are good but can be better. And they go about the job of finding and presenting better ways of getting things done. Henry Ford, Marconi Kettering, Edison — these are the kind of men who change the world for the better . . . yet leave to free to change again and again over the centuries.

We should all wish to change the world. But we should all avoid trying to impose the change by compulsion. We should be sure, too, that having made the change, we do not stamp it indelibly upon society so that no further improvements can come about through the skill and ingenuity of the individual — the divinely dissatisfied individual with whom the best of all changes originated.

April Meeting Springbrook W.A.

The April meeting of Springbrook Woman's Association was held on Thursday, April 6th in the Church. Mrs. Carman Sine and Mrs. Kenneth Thompson acted as hostesses.

Mrs. Clayton Burkitt, a Past President, was in charge of the meeting and opened with the theme hymn, theme prayer and W.A. prayer.

Mrs. Gerald Broadworth led the devotional period which was taken from the Easter service folder. Mrs. Jas. Spry, Mrs. Percy Bateman, Mrs. Ed. Huff, Mrs. Gordon Bailey and Mrs. Chas. Gordanier took part in this service. Mrs. Gerald Broadworth closed with prayer.

Mrs. Carman Sine gave a very interesting and sincere Easter topic "From Death Unto Life." Roll call, "An Easter Hymn," was answered by 23 members and several visitors.

Members reported sending 138 cards and making 78 calls on sick. Mrs. Chas. Gordanier reported making 7 house calls and 4 hospital calls for the special visiting committee. Mrs. Clayton Burkitt will be next month's visiting volunteer.

The flower and fruit committee reported sending 4 cards, 1 box and 1 gift to sick members.

Plans were completed for a May sale. A motion was made to give the offering this month to the Mission Band.

Mrs. Gerald Broadworth read an address and Mrs. Ralph Thompson presented a gift to Mrs. Merle Moore, who has recently moved from this community. Mrs. Moore replied, thanking everyone for the gift and invited them to visit her in her new home in Frankford.

The members of the Mission Band and their mothers were guests of the W.A. at this meeting. At this time the children, presented a short programme consisting of Easter music, Easter thoughts by the juniors, a play, "Mystery of the Talking Birch Bark" and a Bible mother and children contest. Everyone joined hands and formed a circle around the church. One verse of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" was sung and the Mission Band closing was repeated.

Mrs. Clayton Burkitt expressed thanks to the Mission Band for their entertainment.

All were invited to the basement where a party table was prepared for the children. Lunch was served to all by the hostesses and their assistants.

The mature trees used in making pulp and paper average only nine inches in diameter.

NEWS FOR THE BUSY FARMER

ONTARIO WAGES WAR ON WARBLES

According to W. P. Watson, Ontario Live Stock Commissioner, farmers in about 250 townships of the province will soon be treating their cattle for warble grubs. These farmers are residents of the townships which are operating under the provisions of the Warble Fly Control Act. In these townships all cattle with warble grubs must be treated either by brushing or spraying in April and again in May.

This pest has a complex life history in that it passes through a number of stages during the course of a year. In the absence of any treatment many of the grubs which appear in the backs of cattle in the spring emerge and develop into flies. These flies mate, after which the female lays eggs on the lower extremities of cattle. During the process teh cattle are terrified and run or "gad" across fields in an effort to escape their pursuer. Unfortunately, the fly can move faster, and usually succeeds in carrying out its mission. Within a few days the eggs hatch into tiny larvae, which in turn enter the body through the pores in the skin. Once there they grow in size, and migrate, first to the front end of their host, then backwards along the back until they reach the middle of that region. Once established there they bite holes through the hide in an effort to escape. About 3 weeks elapse from the time they puncture the hide until they have enlarged the opening to the point which permits escape.

This pest causes millions of dollars worth of damage annually, the flies by causing a reduction in milk flow or beef production, the grubs by damaging the hides. The meat from the areas adjacent to where they were located must be trimmed. To reduce these losses the pest must be attacked at the most vulnerable stage of its life cycle, and that is during the time it is located in the back of its host.

According to the Live Stock Commissioner, treatment involves applying a mixture of derris powder and water with sufficient force to cause some of the mixture to pass through the openings in the back made by the grubs. Unfortunately, all grubs do not appear in the backs of cattle at the same time; hence treatments must coincide with the migration of grubs. The first treatment is effective in destroying only those grubs that have made openings in the hide at the time it is applied. Thus it is usually necessary to apply another treatment three weeks later, to control the late grubs.

Inspectors have been appointed in each township where the Act is in force and it is their duty to see that all grubby cattle are treated. Persons who fail to carry out this requirement are liable to prosecution. To obtain effective control every person must co-operate, otherwise grubs may survive to reinfest cattle.

Timely Tips

Don't expect a rust preventative to last all winter and all summer too if you store your machinery outside. Machinery that you want to stay protected this summer will need retouching with rust preventative on spots that are worn from wind and snow. Some other tips: thin the preventative with varsol if you feel that kerosene offers a fire hazard; "heavy" preventatives are cheaper than "light" ones on a per-square-foot-of-coverage; rust preventatives leave a slightly sticky film on machinery.

Take extra precautions when you drive at night, suggests Ontario Department of Agriculture safety specialist Hal Wright. Why? Although one-third of the driving is done at night, two-thirds of the traffic deaths occur during this period. Night driving appears to be about 4 times as dangerous as travelling during the daylight hours.

If you can get on your land early — and there's no danger of seeding too late — try to spread out your seedbed cultivations. Stan Young, extension specialist with the O.A.C. Field Husbandry Department, says seedbed cultivation isn't just preparing a good seedbed — it's important to get a good weedkill too. Try to spread your two cultivations over a week and a half; don't follow one cultivation immediately with another. The second working will kill the weeds when they are in the "white thread stage." Dig up a sample of soil and check for germinated weedseeds before your last cultivation.

Making your corn planting plans? Don't forget about Atrazine. It can now be sprayed on as a post-emergence treatment, says Professor Geo. Jones of the O.A.C. Field Husbandry Department. He states it will save on getting the land packed and smooth as was needed for pre-emergence treatments with Atrazine (and Simazine). Post-emergence treatments will give you an immediate kill of broad-leaf and grassy annuals and then will act as a preventative for several months.

Cooking Comments

The secret of good sandwiches is freshness! Sandwiches intended for eating hours later need careful planning, making, and packing, advises the Food and Nutrition Department, Macdonald Institute, Guelph. Wrap sandwiches immediately, in foil, waxed paper, or polyethylene bags. Tea sandwiches may be stacked, unwrapped, in pans lined with foil. Then cover tightly with foil and chill until needed.

Sandwiches of different flavours, especially strong, contrasting flavours should never be wrapped together. Fillings such as salmon, or egg and onion, will impart their flavours to the other fillings.

Sandwich meals can be satisfying as well as easy to prepare. School children in particular need well-balanced lunches. Serve a relish or salad with the sandwich; include a fruit dessert and beverage. Suggested combinations are: ham sandwiches made with whole wheat bread, coleslaw, applesauce, and cold milk; or a toasted cheese sandwich, celery curls, stewed rhubarb, and milk.

Farmstead Improvement Discussed

Some thirty turned out for the Farmstead Improvement meeting held in the Huntingdon Township Hall at Ivanhoe on Tuesday night. Miss Jayne Gay chaired the meeting and Mr. Russell Gomme, of the Horticultural Society Branch Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto, was the special speaker.

Using a farmstead model, Mr. Gomme showed how improvement could be made to the average farm home by the use of trees and shrubs. He emphasized that a clean, tidy homestead with a simple layout of trees and shrubs was most likely to receive favourable consideration from the judge. He also showed slides of last year's winners in Elgin County, after which a film was shown on farmstead improvement.

Ron Begg, of the Agricultural and Horticultural Branch, also spoke, outlining the connection between the International Plowing Match and Farmstead Improvement.

According to Miss Gay, enthusiasm as regards farmstead improvement is growing rapidly in the County.

Local 171 Ontario Farmers' Union

The April meeting of Local 171 of the Ontario Farmers' Union, was held April 13th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Beckett.

The meeting opened with the singing of the Queen. President Murney Bateman was chairman. He announced that a film was available on the Seaway and it was decided to make arrangements to obtain this film.

A discussion period was held concerning hogs and the new milk regulations. It was the opinion of the meeting that the milk regulations discriminated against the small farmer and would force many of them out of milk production. It was moved by George Williams and seconded by Ralph Thompson that Murney Bateman, Frederick Beckett and Morton Reid be a committee to look into these regulations and see if they could be modified.

Jeanne Williams read bill C-77 concerning conservation and tree planting.

Legion Proceeding With Plans For Big Fireworks Display May 22nd

Plans for the Legion Fireworks Display scheduled for Monday May 22nd at the Stirling Fair Grounds are proceeding. The Legion found a generous public response to their appeal for financial support. To date, only a portion of the community has been canvassed. Residents who have not yet been approached may expect a call from a Legion representative in the very near future.

All persons wishing to contribute to the Fireworks Fund may leave their donation with any Legion member or at either Noble's Drug Store or Bob Patterson's. No canvass of the rural area will be made, but it is hoped that citizens of Rawdon and Sidney will give the fund their generous support.

Parking on the Fair Grounds will be restricted to those who have donated to the fund. When a donation is received the donor is given a yellow ticket receipt which entitles the holder to enter and park his car and its occupants. Cars which do not have official receipts will be charged $1.00.

Band In Attendance

The Stirling-Rawdon High School District Band will present a band concert preceding the fireworks display commencing at approximately 8 p.m. Should rain interfere with the event, it will be postponed to Wednesday, May 24th. Additional plans will be announced shortly.

This year's display will be considerably larger than the one staged last year. A representative of the T. W. Hand Fireworks Co. was in town this week to help complete plans for the display.

Basil St. Pierre was the standard bearer.

Delicious refreshments were served at the close of the evening.

Stay Off The Grass!

Spring is here and with it comes the annual admonition "Stay off the Grass." Stirling has many fine lawns and nothing is so provoking to home owners than having their lawns punched full of holes by roving canines, children at play, or thoughtless adults.

What applies to private property should also apply to public property in the Village. Unfortunately there are those who fail to exercise civic pride in matters of this nature. A case in point is the lawn surrounding the local Post Office. For years some of our citizens have made a pedestrian thoroughfare of this lawn until it looks more like a public playground than a lawn. The caretaker does a good job in keeping the interior of the building in spic span shape and it is too bad that the exterior surroundings cannot be kept in like condition because of the actions of those who are thoughtless or void of any civic pride. The co-operation of all citizens would make this site a beauty spot in our fair village. Let's stay off the grass.

Things Every Student Should Know About Ont. Hosp. Insurance

Overy 72,000 Ontario teenagers who turn 19 years of age this year will no longer have hospital insurance protection under their parents' certificates and separate premiums will be required for them. The Ontario Hospital Services Commission has sent supplies of leaflets and posters to all high schools, colleges and universities for distribution to senior students, telling them how to make sure their insurance is continued.

"We are very much concerned that every 19-year old boy and girl know about this requirement," stated Dr. R. W. Ian Urquhart, Chairman of the Commission, "and this distribution of literature is a repeat of a similar programme carried out last year in co-operation with the Ontario Department of Education."

"Many of the young people concerned who are working will already be paying premiums through groups at their places of employment," the Chairman explained, "but thousands are still in school and are apt to overlook their hospital insurance."

More than 115,000 pieces of literature were sent to some 900 educational institutions. The pamphlets also tell students what to do about their hospital insurance if they take summer employment or get married.

MORROW — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, George Morrow, who passed away May 1st, 1960.

The Golden Gate stood open
One year ago today,
With farewells left unspoken
You quickly slipped away.
God knew that you were weary,
The hill too steep to climb,
He gently took your hand in His
And whispered peace be thine.

—Lovingly remembered by the family. 10-1p

SMITH — In loving memory of my dear husband, Franklin E. Smith, who was so suddenly called home, April 29th, 1959.

There is no death! The stars go down
To rise upon some fairer shore;
And bright in heaven's jeweled crown
They shine forever more.
And ever near us, though unseen,
The dear immortal spirits tread;
For all the boundless universe
Is life — there are no dead.

SPRINGTIME DINNER

Veal has much less fat than other meats and also has a milder, more delicate flavour. These factors alone would be reason enough for having veal on springtime dinner menus even if it were not the peak season for this fine-textured meat.

Veal cuts that lend themselves readily to pan frying, broiling and baking are the various chops. There are four kinds — loin chops, rib chops, blade chops and shoulder chops. The Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, points out that the bone in the chop is the key to its identity. Loin chops may have a section of the backbone — which looks somewhat like a T-bone, and in fact, corresponds to T-bone steak in beef. The chop itself is fairly small. Rib chops contain a rib bone along the inside edge which make them easy to identify. The chop is triangular in shape, and corresponds to rib steak in beef. Blade chops contain the thin shoulder blade bone. These chops are larger than either the loin or rib chops. Shoulder chops contain the round shoulder bone as well as rib bones. They are usually quite oval in shape and more meaty than the blade chops.

Blade and shoulder chops are very suited to braising and frying, baking or braising. Loin and rib chops are best for frying.

Here are two delicious ways of serving veal chops. Note the use of seasonings in these recipes; they make perfect foils for the delicate flavour of the veal.

Braised Veal Chops

2 pounds veal shoulder chops, ¾" thick
3 tablespoons fat
1 small onion, chopped
2 teaspoons salt
Few grains pepper
1 teaspoon paprika
1-3 cup chili sauce
½ cup water
1 cup tomato juice
½ cup grated old cheddar cheese

Cut veal into 5 or 6 serving-size pieces. Brown meat in fat over medium-high heat, 4 to 5 minutes each side. Add onion and brown lightly. Sprinkle meat with salt, pepper and paprika. Combine chili sauce, water and tomato juice, then add to pan. Cover closely and simmer, turning pieces once, until meat is tender, about 20 minutes each side. Sprinkle with garted cheese just before serving. 5 to 6 servings.

Curried Veal Chops

2 pounds veal shoulder chops, ¾" thick
4 tablespoons fat
½ teaspoon salt
Few grains pepper
1 teaspoon curry powder
3 to 4 tablespoons flour
1 can (10-oz.) consomme
1½ cups water

Cut veal into 5 or 6 serving-size pieces. Brown meat in fat over medium high heat, 4 to 5 minutes each side. Combine seasonings and sprinkle both sides of meat, then lightly sprinkle with flour. Brown again, about 2 minutes each side, adding more fat if necessary.

Remove meat from pan, add consomme and water and stir until smooth. Replace meat, cover closely and simmer, turning pieces once, until meat is tender, about 20 minutes each side. 5 to 6 servings.

Bancroft Teacher Burns To Death

Bancroft high school teacher, Geo. McKelvey, about 70, burned to death in his home on No. 500 Highway, about seven miles west of Bancroft early Sunday morning.

Mr. McKelvey, who lived alone, was head of the commercial department at North Hastings District High School in Bancroft.

OF MANY THINGS

(By Ambrose Hills)

SUCCESS IN SELLING

Prof. Cecil French, of the University of Alberta, wrote an article for the American Journal of Sociology last fall, dealing with some of the characteristics of those who achieve success in retail selling. It is a study likely to be of some comfort to the salesman who is caught with his quotas down.

Although the study is phrased in professional language, the point seems to be that the easy-going, likeable, sincere, pleasant lad without any "side" is not often at the top in the sales figures. Instead, the boy who might gripe you somewhat, who would be pushy and even somewhat slippery, often rates pretty high for sales volume.

As I say, this may be a comfort to salesmen who miss the boat at bonus time. It should not, however, be of too much comfort. I know a great many salesmen. They do not break down into these two classifications too easily, for I find that sincere, hard-working but scrupulously honest salesmen are usually at the top of the list for high sales and for promotion, especially over any long period of time. The huckster type who is insincere does only a medium-high job, and bats about the country or from store to store and is a poor bet for the established retailer who wants to retain his customers.

I am not suggesting that Prof. French's study is wrong; I think it is very valuable, but much more study is needed, and along these very lines. Salesmanship is vital to the prosperity of the country, and any misunderstanding about what constitutes a good sales personality would be unfortunate.

It has been said that there is nothing wrong with our economy that a 20 percent increase in sales would not cure. And if that means getting up early in the morning and working hard at it, that should be done. The notion that success in selling involves any shady, sharp or insincere practices ought to be spiked, and I am quite sure it would be if studies such as that conducted by Cecil French were followed through in more depth.

Prof. French's paper states that the best salesmen are usually the men with the highest aspirations, who are unwilling to settle for anything less than they are capable of achieving. They are likely to associate with others who have high standards, high requirements. This is something that has always been true, as any general sales manager knows.

What Canada needs is quality salesmanship, motivated by high aspirations, and made sound and solid by fine character. Whether or not that is what we are getting is something else again.

It's Never Too Soon To Be Sure

In a Northern Ontario town, the employees of a large industrial organization were being informed of an unusual event to be held in the morning in a large room just off the cafeteria. Both men and women were to attend, and there was much talk back and forth about the number that would be let off work for the event.

The president of the company, a middle-aged man of rugged stature, handsome, friendly, had been very cooperative when the visiting director of nurses had approached him. Any of his employees who were interested might go, he said.

When the morning arrived, most of the men and women in the plant gathered together to greet the pretty visiting nurse from Toronto who had arrived in her trim uniform in a grey sedan with red doors, piled with movie equipment, films and pamphlets. The screen and movie projector were set up, the lights turned out, and the movie began. The place was crowded.

With most of his employees engaged in watching the movie, the president wandered out of his office to get a cup of coffee from the cafeteria. On his way, he was forced to pass around the edge of the darkened room and the large crowd of closely attentive men and women, their eyes on the film.

It was in both colour and sound, and as he made his way to the counter, a voice from the screen penetrated his ears, his mind. He ordered his coffee, and stood aside drinking it slowly, listening, against his will to the message being delivered from the screen.

Then he went slowly back to his office, sat in his chair for a long time, deep in thought. Finally, reluctantly, but deliberately, he dialed his doctor's number and made an appointment.

Some ten days later, Miss Lois Cahill, the director of nurses to whom he had first talked, had a call from him. He was at home, recuperating from surgery. "If it had not been for hearing part of the film's message from the Canadian Cancer Society," he told her earnestly, "seeing part of the picture out of the corner of my eye, I don't know what might have happened to me. Here I am now, with the thing attended to, and getting better every day. You have no idea how grateful my wife and I are to the Society for sending Its Mobile Little Red Door into our Organization."

While it is unusual for the president and top management to attend the Cancer Society's Mobile Little Red Door movies in their organizations, this true story is by no means unusual among the employees.

The three red sedans, manned by registered nurses with movie equipment and pamphlets, are part of the Canadian Cancer Society's vast education programme in Ontario. During 1960 films were shown and talks given to some 40,000 men and women in Ontario's industries. Out of this number some two thousand men and women went to the nurse afterwards for a private interview.

Of these interviews, there were 191 referrals to the family doctor among the men, and 230 among the women. Each of these referrals would mean the possibility of cancer, and at the same time, the real possibility of a cure, because of visiting the doctor, early diagnosis, and therefore early and adequate treatment.

NEWS FOR THE BUSY FARMER

10-POINT SYSTEM TO SAVE MOST PIGS PER LITTER

Keep these 10 points in mind when your sows are close to farrowing. Dr. Howard Neely of the Ontario Veterinary College suggests them, and even one of them might save a pig.

— Feed the sow a mixture of half bran and half her regular ration a few days before farrowing.

— Scrub farrowing quarters with a solution of 1 pound lye to 20 gallons of water.

— Scatter finely chopped bedding around the pen.

— Wash the sow with soap and water.

— Stay with the sow and help her during farrowing if needed.

— Help the pigs to nurses, if necessary.

— Clip and tie navel cords and dip studs in iodine.

— Use a heat lamp to prevent chilling.

— Give no feed, only water to the sow on farrowing day.

— After farrowing, feed the sow limited amounts of half ration and half bran for 2 to 3 days. Then gradually start to increase feed. Put her on full feed in about 10 days.

SPRAY YELLOW ROCKET VERY EARLY IN SPRING

If you plan to spray Yellow Rocket this spring, you'll have to do two things: find a time when the ground is firm enough to carry equipment; and do it before the legumes have put on 3 inches of growth. So cautions Dr. C. M. Switzer of the O.A.C. Botany Department.

You might have noticed the weed last June. Many first-year hay fields are brightly coloured with its yellow flowers. But in June you can only pull the weeds — spraying might kill the legumes.

If you want to find evidence of Yellow Rocket this spring, look for a weed that grows flat on the ground — much as a dandelion grows. Each leaf has a long stalk with a large end lobe and two to three pairs of side lobes. This stage is observed in late April and early May.

How do you kill it? Dr. Switzer suggests spraying with 2,4-DB or MCPB. If alfalfa is the main legume present, 2,4-DB should be used at 20 ounces (active material) per acre. The cost for the spray material will run about $4 per acre. In clover fields he suggests using MCPB, at the same rate.

"Some stunting of the legumes may result but if spraying is carried out early enough such damage will be unimportant."

One caution: Spraying in the fall is somewhat safer than spraying in the spring.

MILK PRODUCTION

Cows freshened about every twelve months and milked for 10 months produce better than those with longer milking and freshening periods.

Canada Department of Agriculture's A. D. L. Gorrill reached this conclusion after studying the records of the Ayrshire herd at the Experimental Farm.

Average milking period and interval between freshenings have been shortened in the herd over a period of years. From 1937 to 1947 the cows were milked for an average of about 12 months and the freshening intervals was 440 days; from 1953 to 1957 the milking period was about 10 months and the freshening interval 388 days.

The cows that were milked 12 months averaged 7,500 pounds of milk per year with 4.10 percent fat and 309 pounds of butterfat. Those milked 10 months have 1,230 pounds more milk and 69 more butterfat. A higher test as well as higher milk yields were responsible for increased fat production.

Although improved breeding and feeding practices were partly responsible for the bigger production, much of it can surely be attributed to the shorter lactation period and calving interval. An additional advantage is that most cows can be bred to freshen every year at about the same date making it simpler to plan freshenings to meet fluid milk quotas.

The 305-day lactation and 12-month calving interval are ideal for the fluid milk producer but often may be difficult to achieve. Heifers must be bred to freshen around two years of age, at about the same date as their dams, and for all but very small heifers. This is feasible, with proper feeding and management. The breeding of well-grown heifers at an even earlier age (15 to 17 months) generally will not stunt their growth and may prolong their productive life and increase milk and butterfat production. But with cows, breeding troubles often present a problem in maintaining a 12-month calving interval. The recommended time for breeding is 60 to 90 days after freshening.

TIMOTHY LOOKS BEST FOR TREFOIL MIXTURES

What grasses do best with birdsfoot trefoil?

An experiment to find this out has recently been completed at the Ontario Agricultural College. Field crop scientists there, after three years of testing, found timothy was the best for trefoil mixtures.

"Besides giving a good yield of 5300 pounds of hay, the timothy (it was the leafy climax variety) matured close to the same time as trefoil," says Dr. L. N. Huntley, Head of the Field Husbandry Department.

Bromegrass and reed canary grass provided less feed than timothy. Dr. Huntley feels the 5,100-pound yield of brome and 5,400 pound yield of reed canary were too low to warrant using either one as a first-choice grass in a mixture with trefoil. Orchard grass yielded even lower — only 4,800 pounds — and was the poorest grass in the test.

"Most other grasses aren't too useful with trefoil because they mature too early or too late. For example, meadow fescue matures almost 2 weeks before trefoil. By the time trefoil is ready to graze or cut, the fescue is woody."

He suggests a seeding rate of 8 pounds of trefoil to 4 pounds of timothy per acre.

HORSE DRAWN CULTIVATORS ATTACK TO 3-POINT HITCH

If you have one of the old one-horse spring tooth garden cultivators around home and haven't found a use for it, keep this idea in mind: The next time you're at an auction sale look for a twin make to your cultivator and adapt the two of them to attach to a tractor with a three-point hitch.

Clyde Bell, of Lanark County, did it. Clyde says his father "had one of these horse-drawn cultivators for longer than I can remember. I was lucky to pick another of the same make at a dealer's."

First Mr. Bell removed the handles and attached the cultivators to a frame made from the angle iron of an old dump rake. The tower of the three-point hitch was made from a 3-inch wagon tire. He left the original wheels on both cultivators "to control the depth."

"The cultivators can be adjusted for either 36 or 40-inch rows," he claims. "And the levers adjust the width at 1-inch intervals. The inside foot is removed from each cultivator when used on mature potato and strawberry rows. The hydraulic control on the tractor raises and lowers the cultivator; the sway bars control the alignment."

Mr. Bell's tractor has a clearance of about 14 inches and the cultivator frame has a clearance of 16 inches. But he has used it on corn from 18 to 20 inches tall "without any apparent damage to the crop."

Costs?

"It cost me $18 to have the cultivator made up at a local shop. Then there's the cost of the two old cultivators which would run $15 to $20 at a local auction sale. A new cultivator would have cost me a couple of hundred dollars."

An interesting sidelight: Mr. Bell first got the idea almost 10 years ago while attending a winter short course at the O.A.C. He kept the idea in the back of his mind until last year when he saw a horse-drawn cultivator similar to his own.

Timely Tips

You can lower replacement costs if you keep good hens a second year, says John Walker of the O.A.C. Poultry Department. Hens in their second year lay about 80 percent as many eggs as they laid the first year. For example, a 275-egg hen will lay about 220; a 250-egg hen, 200 eggs; a 200-egg hen, only 160 eggs. It usually takes 200 or more eggs for a hen to be profitable so you probably will have to cull about 20 percent of a good hybrid flock. Cage operators who keep records will be able to cull most easily; others will have to depend on skin bleaching and molt.

Watch out for worn boxings in disc harrows. So cautions J. R. Scott of the O.A.C. Engineering Science Department. Worn boxings if not maintained or replaced can result in $25 to $35 damage in half a day's work.

Fast milkers are especially prone to teat injury if the milking machine is left on too long, says Fred Hamilton of the O.A.C. Dairy Science Department. If you have fast milking cows and are sometimes crowded for time during milking — be sure you pull the milkers off them as soon as they're milked out. Slow milkers aren't so prone to teat injury.

Don't let your nurse crop crowd hay and pasture seedlings. Bob Fulkerson of the O.A.C. Field Husbandry Department says 1 to 1½ bushels of oats will yield within 10 percent of a 2½ bushel seeding rate — and give seedlings a chance. Seeding the nurse crop in 14-inch rows instead of 7-inch rows will help too.

CHEVROLET INDEPENDENT FRONT SUSPENSION TRUCKS

smoother because...

In pickups, middleweights or heavy-duty tandems, there's a Chevy Independent Front Suspension truck to save you time and money. A truck that works harder, rides smoother and lasts longer! And here's the reason why . . .

I-BEAM TYPE FRONT AXLE. A stiffbeam design that transmits road shock right through the truck.

easier on the driver

Independent Front Suspension cuts road shock and vibration before they can reach the cab and driver. He's relaxed, comfortable, able to do more work in a day.

easier on the load

Chevy's Independent Front Suspension protects valuable payloads, and owner reports prove it. You can take a fragile cargo over the roughest roads with far less worry about costly damage.

easier on the truck

Less wear and tear on the truck's body and sheet metal makes for lower upkeep and longer truck life.

The County of Hastings will initiate expropriation proceedings to acquire the one remaining property needed to complete the right-of-way for the reconstruction of the Madoc-Foxboro road.

The necessary bylaw authorizing the expropriation was given all three readings at Tuesday's opening session of County Council. Tenders for the construction of the first four-and-a-half miles of the remaining 17 miles between Madoc and Foxboro will be called by the Ontario Department of Highways. The road is to be rebuilt as a development road project.

County Warden Harleigh Hamilton told councillors that all property purchases needed for the right-of-way with the exception of one had now been agreed upon. He said one owner near the Crookston road turn was proving "difficult."
